COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE - Substantial Changes

I. Summary:

CS/SB 918 limits the circumstances in which an abortion may be lawfully performed on a viable fetus. Under existing law, abortions are generally prohibited during the third trimester. Under the bill, abortions are also prohibited when a fetus reaches viability, which might occur before the third trimester.

The bill also redefines viability. Existing law describes a viable fetus as a fetus who with a reasonable degree of medical probability may survive indefinitely outside the womb. The bill defines a viable fetus as a fetus who is sustainable outside the womb through standard medical procedures. Under the bill, before performing an abortion, a physician must examine the fetus to determine whether it is viable.

Under existing law, an abortion may be performed during the third trimester to “preserve the health of the pregnant woman.” However, existing law does not describe what it means to preserve the health of a pregnant woman. The bill effectively defines this concept as averting a “serious risk of substantial and irreversible physical impairment of a major bodily function of the pregnant woman other than a psychological condition.” The bill applies the new standard to abortions in the third trimester or on a viable fetus. The bill, as under existing law, allows an abortion when a pregnant woman’s life is at risk.

II. Present Situation:

Case Law on Abortion

In 1973, the U.S. Supreme Court issued the landmark Roe v. Wade decision.<sup>1</sup> Using strict scrutiny, the court determined that a woman's right to terminate a pregnancy is part of a fundamental right to privacy guaranteed under the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.<sup>2</sup> Further, the court reasoned that state regulation limiting the exercise of this right must be justified by a compelling state interest, and must be narrowly drawn.<sup>3</sup> The court established the trimester framework for the regulation of termination – holding that in the third trimester, a state could prohibit termination to the extent that the woman's life or health was not at risk.<sup>4</sup>

In Planned Parenthood v. Casey, the U.S. Supreme Court, while upholding the fundamental holding of Roe, recognized that medical advancement could shift determinations of fetal viability away from the trimester framework.<sup>5</sup>

Abortion in Florida

Article I, section 23 of the State Constitution provides an express right to privacy. The Florida Supreme Court has recognized that this constitutional right to privacy “is clearly implicated in a woman's decision whether or not to continue her pregnancy.”<sup>6</sup>

In In re T.W., the Florida Supreme Court determined that:

[p]rior to the end of the first trimester, the abortion decision must be left to the woman and may not be significantly restricted by the state. Following this point, the state may impose significant restrictions only in the least intrusive manner designed to safeguard the health of the mother. Insignificant burdens during either period must substantially further important state interests. . . .

Under our Florida Constitution, the state's interest becomes compelling upon viability. . . . Viability under Florida law occurs at that point in time when the fetus becomes capable of meaningful life outside the womb through standard medical measures.<sup>7</sup>

The Florida Supreme Court recognized that after viability, the state can regulate termination in the interest of the unborn child as long as the mother's health is not in jeopardy.<sup>8</sup>

Under Florida law, abortion is defined as the termination of a human pregnancy with an intention other than to produce a live birth or to remove a dead fetus.<sup>9</sup> A termination of pregnancy must be performed by a physician<sup>10</sup> licensed under ch. 458, F.S., or ch. 459, F.S., or a physician practicing medicine or osteopathic medicine in the employment of the United States.<sup>11</sup>

A termination of pregnancy may not be performed in the third trimester unless there is a medical necessity. Florida law defines the third trimester to mean the weeks of pregnancy after the 24th week.<sup>12</sup> Specifically, an abortion may not be performed within the third trimester unless two physicians certify in writing that, to a reasonable degree of medical probability, the termination of pregnancy is necessary to save the life or preserve the health of the pregnant woman. If a second physician is not available, one physician may certify in writing to the medical necessity for legitimate emergency medical procedures for termination of the pregnancy.<sup>13</sup>

Section 390.0111(4), F.S., provides that if a termination of pregnancy is performed during viability, the person who performs or induces the termination of pregnancy must use that degree of professional skill, care, and diligence to preserve the life and health of the fetus, which such person would be required to exercise in order to preserve the life and health of any fetus intended to be born and not aborted. Viability is defined in this provision to mean that stage of fetal development when the life of the unborn child may with a reasonable degree of medical probability be continued indefinitely outside the womb. However, the woman's life and health constitute an overriding and superior consideration to the concern for the life and health of the fetus when such concerns are in conflict.

A termination of pregnancy in the third trimester must be performed in a hospital.<sup>14</sup>

Statistical Information on Live Births and Terminations of Pregnancy in Florida

In 2013, The Department of Health reported 214,405 live births in Florida.<sup>15</sup> In that same year, the Agency for Health Care Administration (AHCA) reported 71,503 induced terminations of pregnancy.<sup>16</sup> The information supplied by AHCA provides that

- 65,098 terminations were performed in the first trimester,
- 6,405 were performed in the second trimester, and
- None was performed in the third trimester or after 25 weeks.

Viability

Current law defines “viability” to mean that stage of fetal development when the life of the unborn child may with a reasonable degree of medical probability be continued indefinitely outside the womb.<sup>17</sup>

The gestational age at which a fetus is viable has occurred earlier in the pregnancy in recent years. The American Academy of Pediatrics, in 1935, chose to define a premature infant as one who weighed less than 2,500 grams at birth and no consideration was given to gestational age. No minimum weight for viability was established, but 1,250 grams was often used and corresponded to an estimated gestational age of 28 weeks. As new medical advances have become increasingly mainstream, the medical definition of viability has continued to evolve as well. With additional medical advancements, infants born at 23 and 24 weeks’ estimated gestational age are surviving more frequently<sup>18</sup>

Determining the viability of a fetus is not an exact science and depends on each pregnant woman and fetus. Many factors, including gestational age, weight, sex, and whether it is a single fetus, are considered in determining viability now and in the future as neonatal and medical care advances.<sup>19,20</sup>

<sup>20</sup> The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Eunice Kennedy Shriver National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, Pregnancy and Perinatology Branch-supported researchers developed a tool using data from the Neonatal Research Network (NRN) that shows outcome trends for infants born at extremely preterm gestations.

Twenty-one states place limits on abortions after the fetus is viable. Generally, exceptions are made when the life and health of the women is at risk.<sup>21</sup>

Documenting Gestational Age

The Agency for Health Care Administration is responsible for regulating abortion clinics under ch. 390, F.S., and part II of ch. 408, F.S. Section 390.012, F.S., requires the agency to adopt rules<sup>22</sup> for, among other things, clinics that perform abortions after the first trimester of pregnancy. These rules must address physical facilities, supplies and equipment standards, personnel, medical screening and evaluation of patients, abortion procedures, recovery room standards, follow-up care, and adverse incident reporting. The statutes further prescribe specific components to be included within the rules relating to each of these subject areas.

Within rules relating to medical screening and evaluation of patients, the rules must, among other things, require that the physician is responsible for estimating the gestational age of the fetus based on the ultrasound examination and obstetric standards in keeping with established standards of care regarding the estimation of fetal age and shall write the estimate in the patient's medical history. The physician is also required to keep original prints of each ultrasound examination in the patient's medical history file.

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

The bill prohibits abortions once a physician has determined that, in reasonable medical judgment, a fetus is viable in the same manner as abortions are prohibited during the third trimester of pregnancy. This provides for comparable treatment as medical advances allow the life of a fetus to be sustainable outside the womb at an earlier point of gestation than the third trimester. The bill leaves in place the current prohibition on performing abortions during the third trimester.

Definitions

Section 1

The bill defines the term "reasonable medical judgment" as a medical judgment that would be made by a reasonably prudent physician, knowledgeable about the case and treatment possibilities with respect to the medical conditions involved.

The term "viable" or "viability" is redefined and moved from another section of law<sup>23</sup> into the definitions section for applicability to the entire ch. 390, F.S. Under the bill, "viable" or "viability" means the stage of fetal development when the life of a fetus is sustainable outside the womb through standard medical measures.

“Standard medical measure” is defined in the bill to mean the medical care that a physician would provide based on the particular facts of the pregnancy, the information available to the physician, and the technology reasonably available in a hospital, as defined in s. 395.002, F.S., with an obstetrical department, to preserve the life and health of the fetus, with or without temporary artificial life sustaining support, if the fetus were born at the same stage of fetal development.

Termination of Pregnancy in the Third Trimester and During Viability

Sections 2 and 3

The bill establishes the same prohibitions and conditions for performing an abortion in the third trimester of pregnancy and once a fetus achieves viability. The medical exceptions that allow a physician to perform an abortion in the third trimester of pregnancy are modified and are consistent with the medical exceptions established during viability.

The bill authorizes a termination of pregnancy in the third trimester or during viability when two physicians certify in writing that, in reasonable medical judgment, the termination is necessary to save the pregnant woman’s life or avert a serious risk of substantial and irreversible physical impairment of a major bodily function of the pregnant woman other than a psychological condition. If a second physician is not available, the physician may certify in writing to the medical necessity for legitimate emergency medical procedures for termination of the pregnancy to save the pregnant woman’s life or avert a serious risk of imminent substantial and irreversible physical impairment of a major bodily function of the pregnant woman other than a psychological condition.

The bill specifies a standard of care when a termination of pregnancy occurs during viability that parallels the standard of care required when a termination of pregnancy occurs in the third trimester. The physician performing the abortion must exercise the same degree of professional skill, care, and diligence to preserve the life and health of the fetus which the physician would be required to exercise in order to preserve the life and health of a fetus intended to be born and not aborted. Further, if preserving the life and health of the fetus conflicts with preserving the life and health of the woman, the physician must consider preserving the woman’s life and health the overriding and superior concern.

Section 4

This section amends s. 797.03, F.S., to prohibit a person from performing an abortion on a person during viability in a facility other than in a hospital. A person who wilfully violates this provision is guilty of a misdemeanor of the second degree, punishable by a definite term of imprisonment not exceeding 60 days and subject to a fine of up to $500.

Determination of Viability

Section 3

Before terminating a pregnancy, a physician must determine, in reasonable medical judgment, whether the fetus has achieved viability. At a minimum, the physician must perform a medical examination of the pregnant woman and, to the maximum extent possible through reasonably available tests and the ultrasound,<sup>24</sup> an examination of the fetus. The physician must document in the pregnant woman's medical file his or her determination and the method, equipment, fetal measurements, and any other information used to determine the viability of the fetus.

Penalties

Section 2

The penalties for violating the bill's provisions pertaining to termination of pregnancies during viability in s. 390.01112, F.S., are similar to those for violating the provisions pertaining to termination of pregnancies during the third trimester in s. 390.0111, F.S.

Specifically, the bill provides that a person who willfully performs, or actively participates in, a termination of pregnancy in violation of the requirements of s. 390.01112, F.S., commits a felony of the third degree. If the woman dies as a result of this act, the person commits a felony of the second degree. A felony of the third degree is punishable by a term of imprisonment not exceeding 5 years and may incur a fine of up to $5,000. A felony of the second degree is punishable by a term of imprisonment not exceeding 15 years and may incur a fine of up to $10,000.

Severability and Reversion

Section 5

This section provides for severability and reversion. If any provision of the bill or its application to any person or circumstance is held invalid, then other provisions which can be given effect are to be given effect. Notwithstanding that, if s. 390.01112, F.S., governing the termination of pregnancies during viability, is held unconstitutional and severed, then the amendments in this act to the other provisions of law are repealed and will revert to the law as it existed on January 1, 2014.

The effective date of this act is July 1, 2014.

CS by Health Policy on April 1, 2014:

The CS defines the term “reasonable medical judgment.” The CS requires a physician to use reasonable medical judgment, as defined, when determining:

- Whether a fetus is viable, in lieu of “good faith medical judgment”; and,
- Whether a woman’s life and health is in sufficient danger to require a termination of pregnancy in either the third trimester or after the fetus is viable, in lieu of a reasonable degree of medical probability.

B. Amendments:

None.
