SUMMARY ANALYSIS

Certain state and local governments throughout the country use emergency information gathering systems to collect voluntarily provided information about persons within the government's jurisdiction to assist first responders in helping such persons in time of an emergency.

This bill creates a public record exemption for information furnished by a person to a Florida state, county, or municipal government agency for the purpose of registering emergency information for the agency's emergency information gathering system. The information includes the person's name, address, telephone number, e-mail address or other electronic communication address, and health and other personal information.

The bill also provides that the public record exemption is subject to the Open Government Sunset Review Act and will stand repealed on October 2, 2020, unless reviewed and saved from repeal through reenactment by the Legislature. Additionally, the bill provides a statement of public necessity for the exemption as required by the State Constitution.

The bill has no fiscal impact on state or local government revenues.

The bill has an effective date of July 1, 2015.

Article I, s. 24(c) of the State Constitution, requires a two-thirds vote of the members present and voting for final passage of a newly created or expanded public record or public meeting exemption. I. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS

A. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

Present Situation

Public Records

Article I, s. 24(a) of the State Constitution sets forth the state's public policy regarding access to government records. The section guarantees every person a right to inspect or copy any public record of the legislative, executive, and judicial branches of government.

Public policy regarding access to government records is also addressed in Florida Statutes. Section 119.07(1), F.S., guarantees every person a right to inspect and copy any state, county, or municipal record.

Public Record Exemptions

The Legislature may provide by general law for the exemption of records and meetings from the requirements of Article I, s. 24(a) of the State Constitution. The general law must state with specificity the public necessity justifying the exemption (public necessity statement) and must be no broader than necessary to accomplish its purpose.¹

The Open Government Sunset Review Act² provides that a public record or public meeting exemption may be created or maintained only if it serves an identifiable public purpose. In addition, it may be no broader than is necessary to meet one of the following purposes:

- to allow the state or its political subdivisions to effectively and efficiently administer a governmental program, which administration would be significantly impaired without the exemption;
- to protect sensitive personal information that, if released, would be defamatory or would jeopardize an individual's safety; however, only the identity of an individual may be exempted under this provision; or
- to protect trade or business secrets.³

Emergency Information Gathering Systems

Certain state and local governments throughout the country use emergency information gathering systems to collect information about a person to assist first responders in helping such person in time of an emergency.⁴ The information is voluntarily provided and varies in detail. For example, the information may include details about certain allergies, a disability, a previous medical condition, or even the floor plans of one's home. Once a person's information is in the emergency information gathering system, the information is integrated with the government's 9-1-1 system and is automatically displayed to a 9-1-1 operator or administrator during emergency calls.⁵

Various companies exist throughout the United States that enter into public private partnerships with state and local governments to provide the technology and administration necessary to successfully implement emergency information gathering systems.⁶

The bill does not require a reduction of the percentage of state tax shared with municipalities or counties.
