The People of Lawmaking in Florida

1822 - 2023

Paul Renner, Speaker

January 2023
Edition

Introduction

"The People of Lawmaking in Florida" strives to be an accessible guide for current and historical membership of the Florida House of Representatives and the Florida Senate. The book is updated to reflect the biennial elections of new members to the Florida House of Representatives and the Florida Senate. For the use and benefit of all citizens, copies of "The People of Lawmaking in Florida" will also be deposited in Florida public libraries.

How to use this guide

Only regular and organization sessions are noted, with the following exceptions: 1) if the first session served is other than a regular session; 2) if the last session served is other than a regular session and occurs in the succeeding year; and 3) if a session other than regular is at the beginning or end of a time gap in a succession of terms.

For example: Brown, J. R.

House, Seminole, 1962 (ex),
1963, 1965, 1966 (org),
1967, 1968 (spec)

This indicates that Representative Brown's first legislative service was in the Extraordinary Session in November 1962 and that his last service was in the Special Session in June 1968. He served in the Regular Sessions of 1963, 1965, and 1967 and in the Organization Session of 1966.

Sessions other than regular:

(adj)	adjourned*
(ex)	extra or extraordinary*
(org)	organization
(spec)	special

*This terminology has been used to indicate sessions other than the Regular Session but in essence is synonymous with what we refer to today (2023) as a Special Session.

Political parties as a cohesive force in Florida date from the organization of the Jeffersonian Republican Democratic Party at St. Joseph on January 11, 1839.

The organization of this party caused its opponents to similarly band together in a group known as the Whig Party. By 1845, when Florida entered the Union, the Jeffersonian Republican Democratic Party trimmed its title to the Democratic Party.

By 1852, the Whigs had gravitated to two other parties: the Southern Rights Whigs to the Democratic and the remaining Whigs to the American, or Know Nothing, Party. In the crucial year 1860, they shifted again, to the Constitutional Union Party.

The resurgence of party politics after the Civil War saw two national parties, the Republican and the Democratic. In Florida, the question of white supremacy attracted dissidents from both parties to a new Independent Party, which won 12 of the 32 Senate seats and 23 of the 88 House seats in the 1884 Legislature. After that election, the status quo was restored to the Democratic and Republican parties with a few deviations. Populists captured a few legislative seats in 1890.

Sidney J. Catts, while professing to be a Democrat, won the governorship on the Prohibition ticket in 1916. On other ballots, there have been Socialist, Progressive, Communist, and Dixiecrat candidates. Of those, at least one Socialist, A. J. Pettigrew, won election to the House from Manatee County for the 1907 Session.

In sum, the party labels used herein must be taken in the terminology of the time.

The following abbreviations are used:

- (Dem)—Democratic
- (Rep)—Republican
- (Pop)—Populist
- (Soc)—Socialist
- (Const Union)—Constitutional Unionist
- (Ind)—Independent
- (Cons)—Conservative

Your help solicited

This book is updated to include the biennial elections of new members to the Florida House of Representatives and the Florida Senate.

If you are aware of information that we have been unable to identify from existing materials your assistance in clarifying such ambiguities is always appreciated. For example, determining whether the "Wm." Smith recorded historically by the Clerk as spelled one way is the same person as "William" Smith representing the same county 10 years later.

*The House of Representatives on May 24, 1961, expelled Representative E. Bert Riddle by the required Constitutional 2/3 vote with 82 yeas and no nays. No charge was entered into the Journal, but informally, it was understood that Riddle had passed an offensive note to a female page.
